

Dr Angus Cheung is the Chief Executive Officer of China Aircraft Services Limited (CASL). Under his stewardship since 1997, CASL has successfully developed itself as one of the major aircraft maintenance and ground support services providers in Asia Pacific with over 1,000 employees in Hong Kong. Before joining CASL, he worked for Associated Engineers Limited for 14 years; moving up from the initial Engineer position to the General Manager position before his departure.

Dr Cheung received his undergraduate education in Mechanical Engineering from Hong Kong Polytechnic University and then furthered his studies in University of Hong Kong and Chinese University of Hong Kong with the awards of Master of Science (Engineering) and Master of Business Administration Degrees respectively. He received his Engineering Doctorate Degree from Warwick University (UK) and has been appointed as the University's Industrial Fellow in 2007.

Dr Cheung is a Chartered Electrical, Mechanical and Industrial Engineer; he is a Fellow of Institution of Engineering & Technology (UK), Institution of Mechanical Engineers (UK), Hong Kong Institution of Engineers and the Institution of Engineers, Australia.

Dr Cheung is the Vice President of Hong Kong Aviation Industry Association. He is also a Committee Member of the International Federation of Airworthiness.

Dr Cheung has been actively involved in promoting the engineering profession in Hong Kong. He has served the Hong Kong Institution of Engineers and other overseas engineering institutions in many different positions, which range from Committee Member, Division Chairman and Discipline Representative to Council Member. He is also a Member of the Electrical & Mechanical Services Industry Training Advisory Committee under the Education and Manpower Planning Bureau of HKSAR Government and has been appointed by the Hong Kong Council for Accreditation of Academic & Vocational Qualifications as a Sector / Subject Specialist.

Dr Cheung has been enthusiastic in local and China education. He has been appointed by Hong Kong Polytechnic University as Advisory Committee Member of Mechanical Engineering and Industrial & System Engineering Departments in 2007. He is also a Member of the Engineering Courses Advisory Board of the Institute of Vocational Education (Tsing Yi Nexus). He is a Visiting Professor at Guangzhou Civil Aviation College of China and Nanjing University of Aeronautics and Astronautics. Dr Cheung also serves the Chinese University of Hong Kong as an Elite Mentor.